Mrs. Grace Lowery

We are all extremely grateful for her friendly smile, gracious helpfulness, and sincere interest in all of us and our problems. Although she was kept continually busy typing records, schedules, and examinations, and delivering messages, she could always find time to solve a student's problem. To show our appreciation for these things and more, we gratefully dedicate this 1961 Dutchman to Mrs. Grace Lowery.

We met and mingled at the mixer —

WELCOME

Hi mommy! Hi daddy! Hi everyone!

new friends, new faces, new friendships.

If you leave early, you leave barefoot!

Step right up!

We lingered, and laughed in the lounge —

Scoot over, Mr. Margerum is coming!

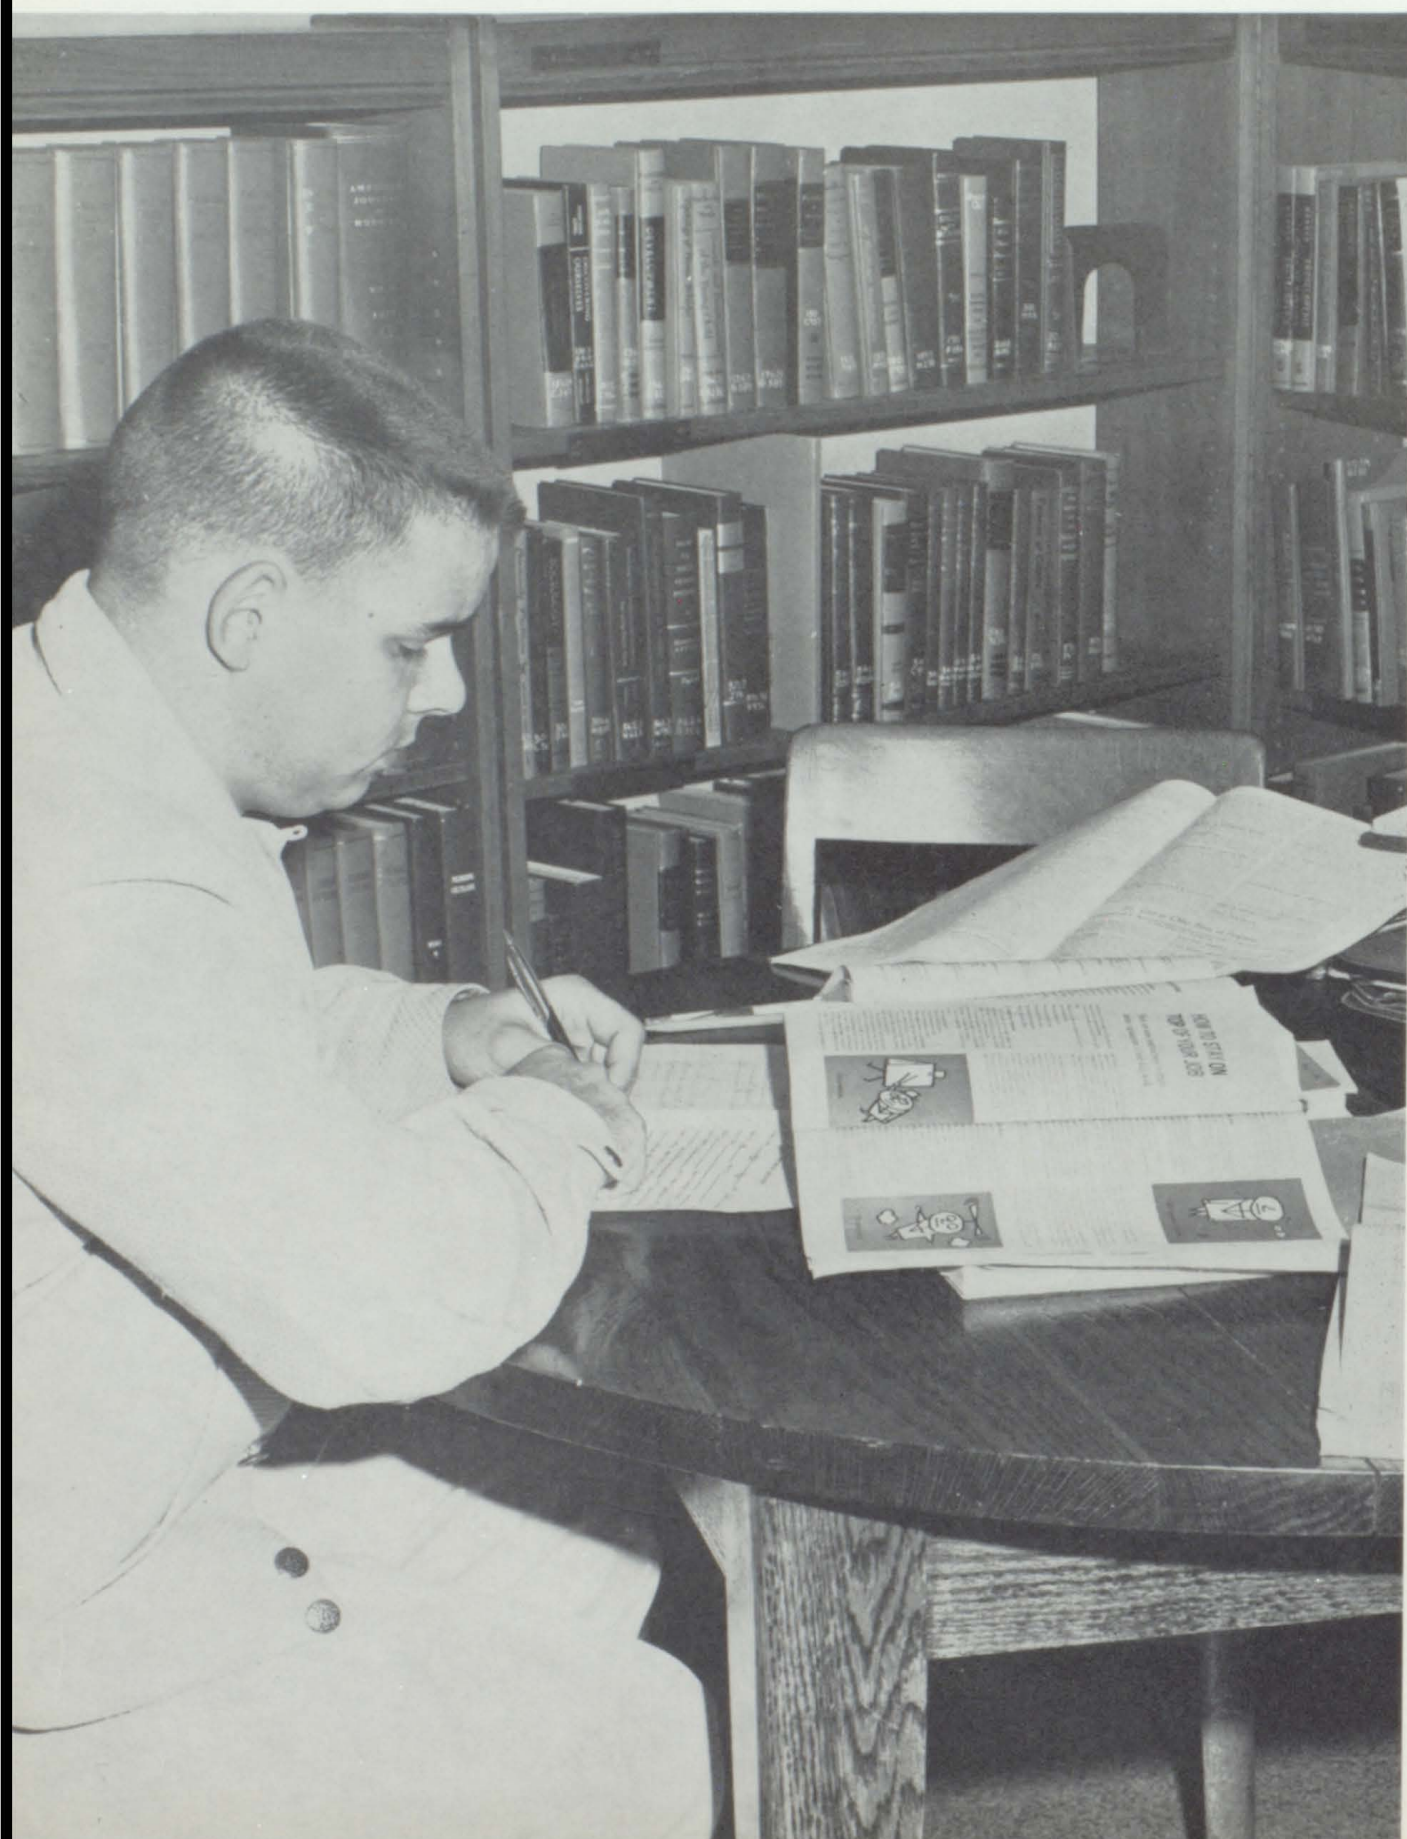

snoozing, smoking, and socializing.

And now for a quick review and a smoke!

Watch it, Sandy, that's another five pounds!

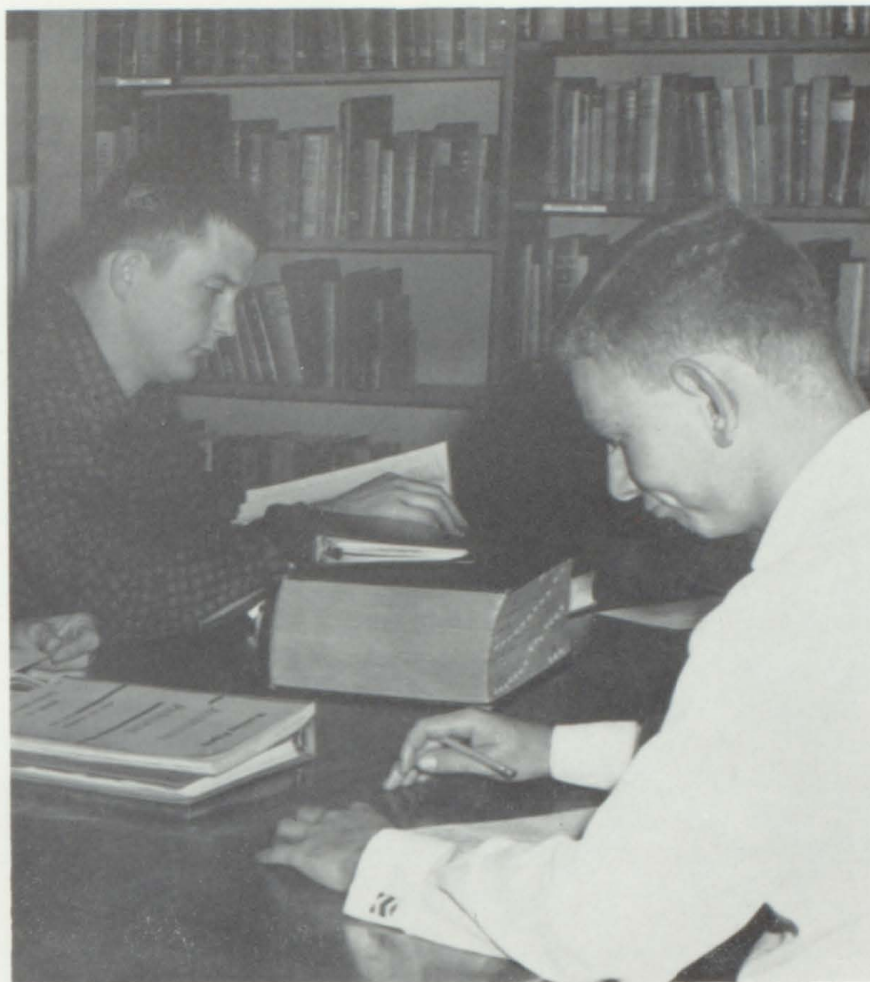

We studied and learned in the library —

readin', ritin', and researchin'.

I had vinegar for lunch!

Shucks! Who has the Playboy?

But I gave you a five dollar bill!

As some breathed sighs of relief after exams,

Cleaning up and moving out!

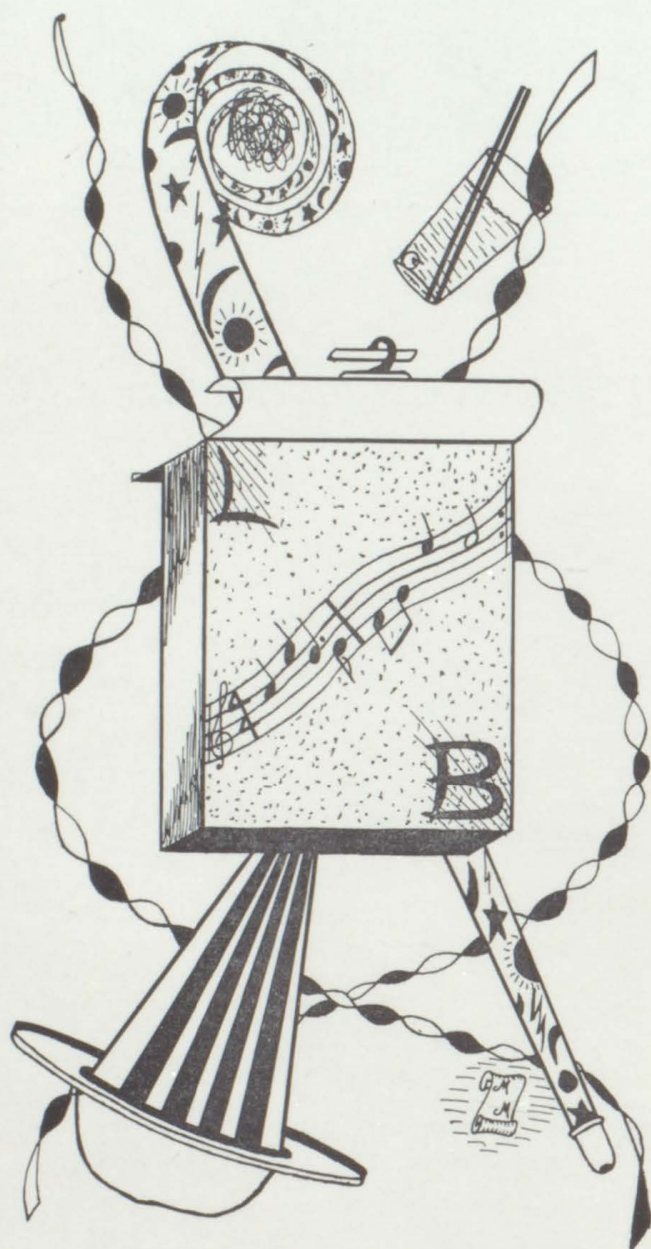

Hey, what was the answer to Number 13?

others had cause for regrets over grades.

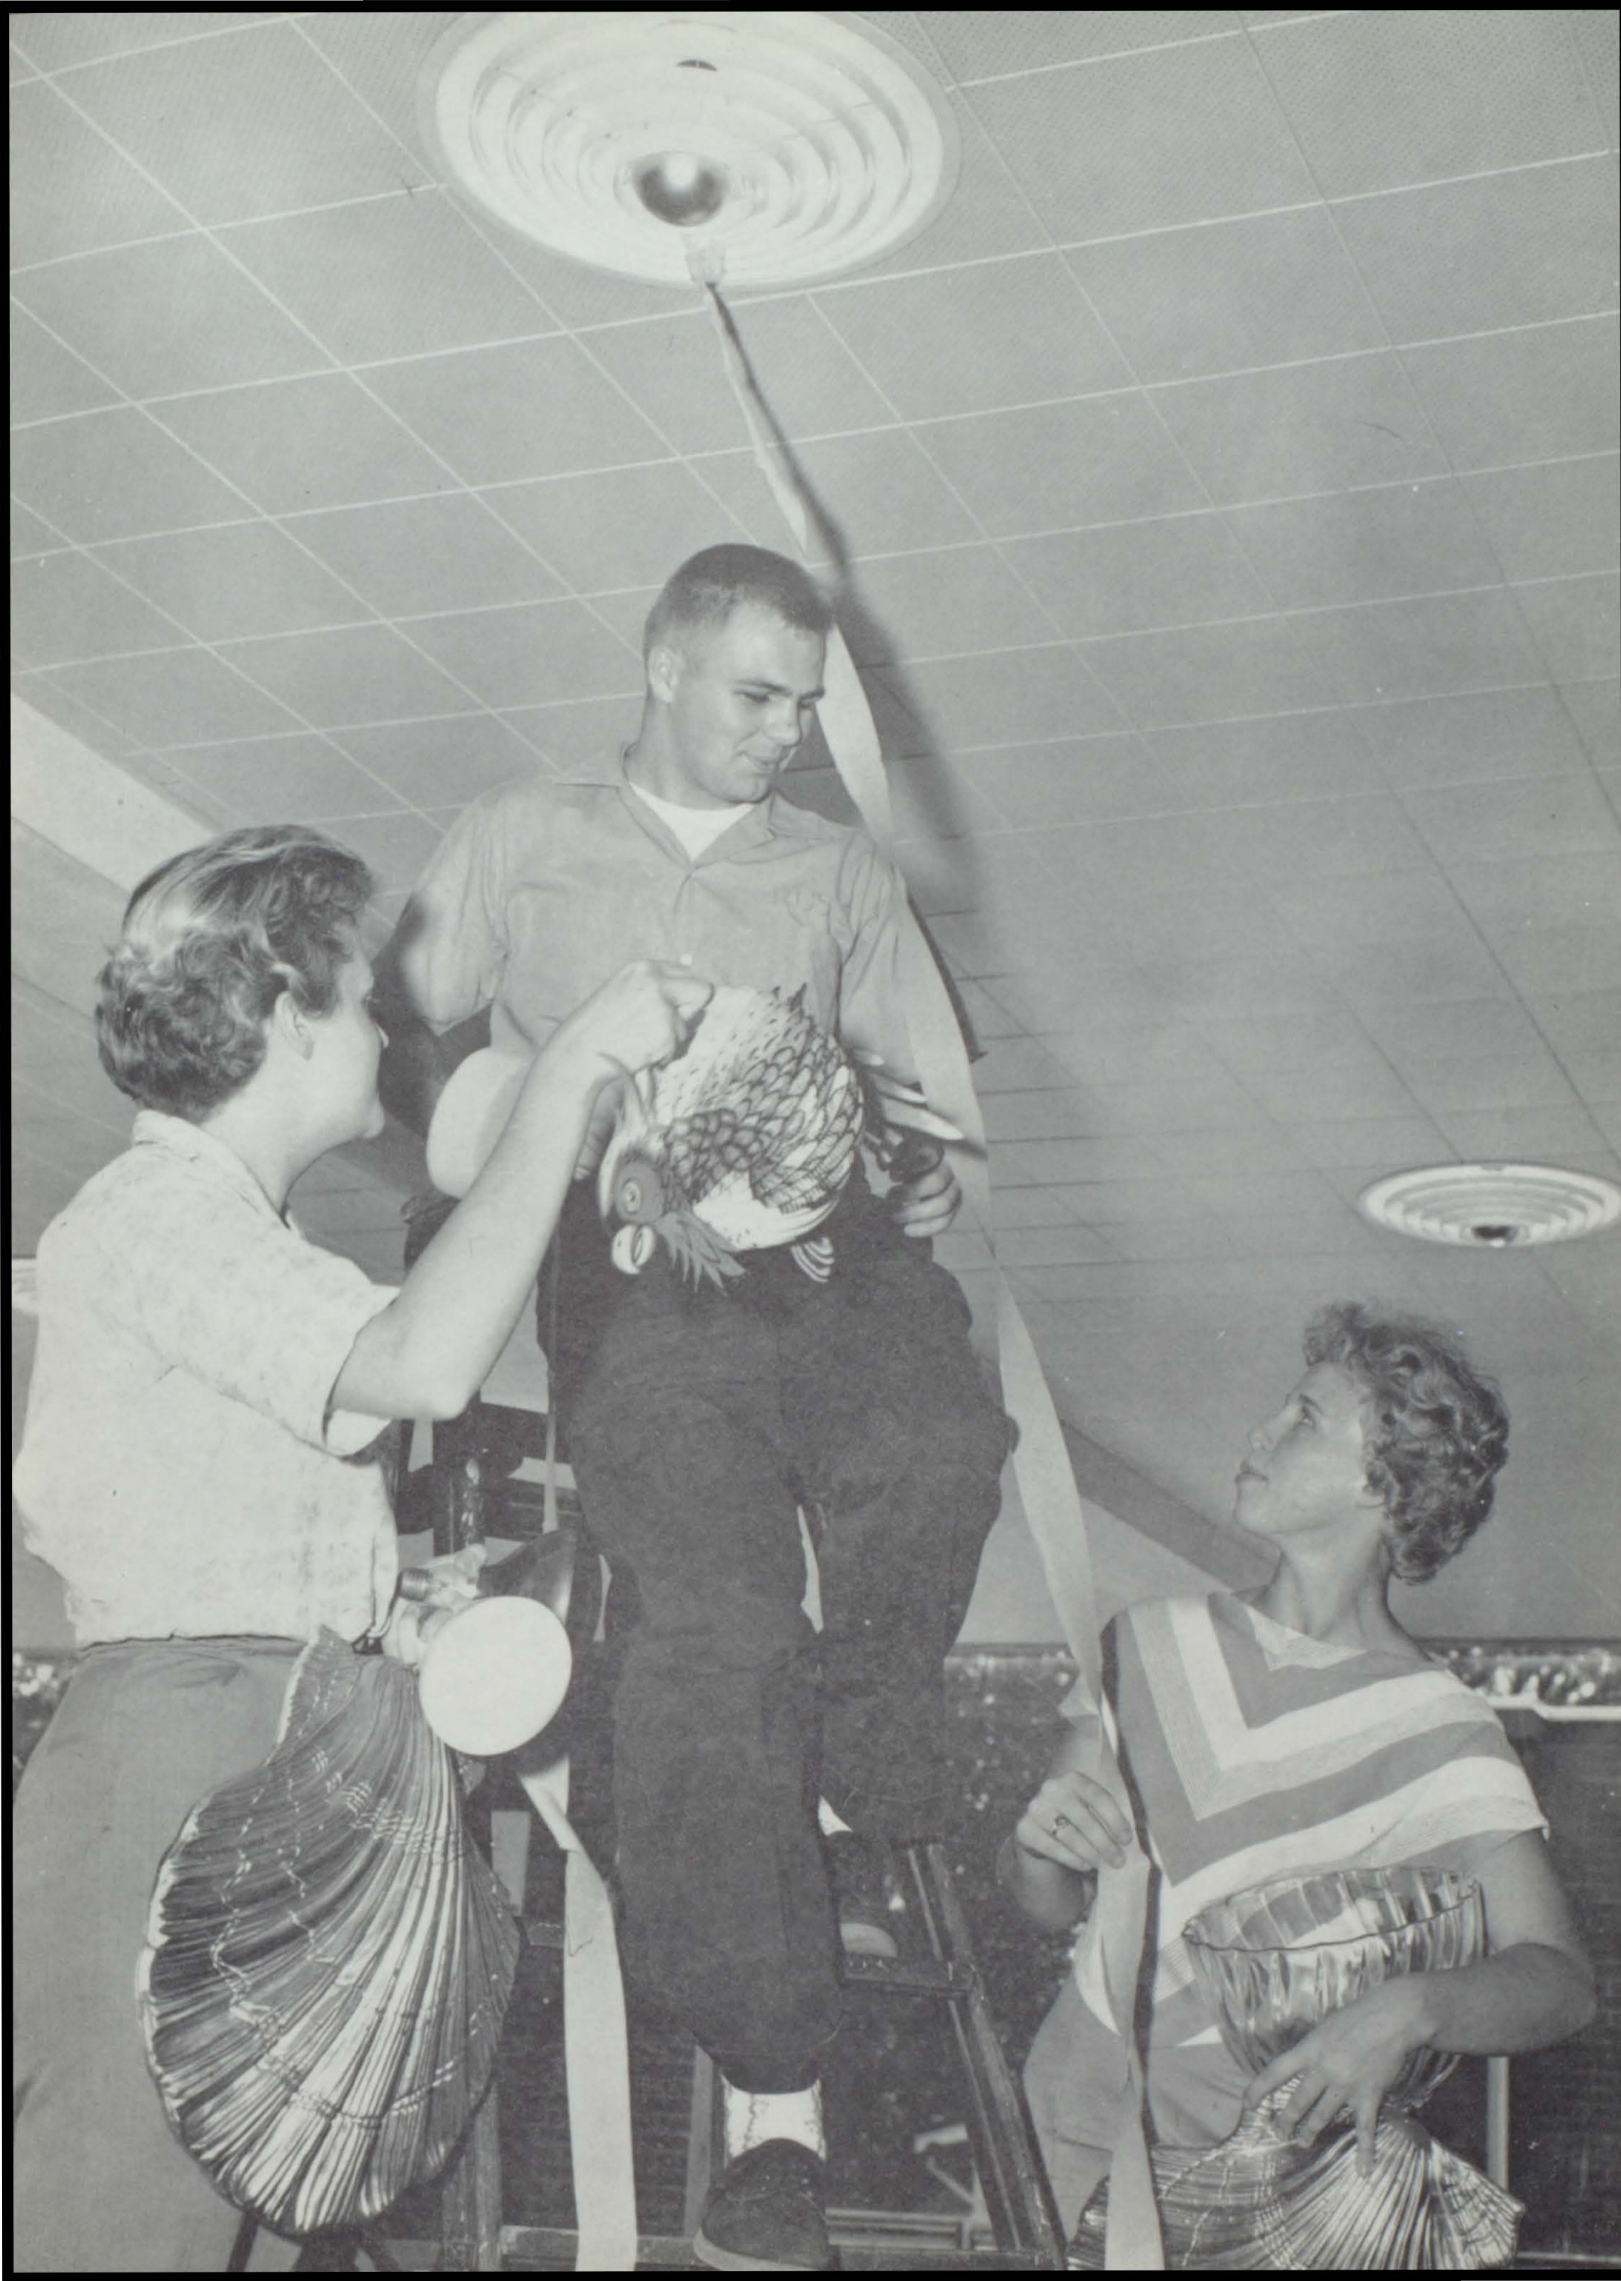

Ready! Aim! Fire!

Activities

While at Junior College we were kept busy, not only with our studies, but also with the activities. We were well represented by our Student Council which cooperated with the other clubs in Junior College and co-sponsored the annual Homecoming Dance. The Social Committee, a vital organization in Junior College, planned the barn dances, mixers, formals, hayrides, and picnics we attended throughout the year. Recently organized, the Illinois Student Education Association, with the cooperation of the schools in the Belleville area, gave us an opportunity to observe actual classroom teaching. If we studied hard throughout the year and maintained a 3.3 average we were eligible for admission to Phi Theta Kappa, an honorary scholastic fraternity. The Junior College choir provided an excellent outlet for our singing talents. We on the Dutchman Staff worked constantly to gather and record the events which made this year outstanding for everyone.

reigned at BJC's 1960 Homecoming Dance.

November 26, the Saturday after Thanksgiving, marked the date of the annual Homecoming Dance. All day Friday, the Social Committee and Student Council members were busy decorating the school cafeteria with the gold and purple streamers, satin curtains, genies, lamps, and Arabian murals. That evening the nine queen candidates, sponsored by various campus organizations, and their escorts practiced their bows and their approach to the velvet-covered throne in the east end of the cafeteria. On Saturday night, over 250 couples attended and danced to the music of Stan Nelson and his orchestra.

The coronation which began at 11 was emceed by Mike Scott. Miss Jan Elliot, the fashion narrator, described each girl's formal as she walked down the long-carpeted path to the music of her favorite song. After the eight maids had entered, the 1960 Homecoming Queen, Miss Pat Bozsa, was announced. Upon arriving at the throne, she made her royal bow and received her crown from Deanna Ratliffe, the retiring queen. After congratulating the new queen, we continued dancing until midnight, at which time Stan Nelson played "At Last," and we knew another Homecoming had come to a close but that it had truly been "A Night to Remember."

The many formal and informal social functions

John Schroeder and John Hoel carried risers for the orchestra.

Miss Jan Elliot and Mike Scott emceed our homecoming coronation.

To get our new co-eds acquainted, to give a feeling of unity to our school, to help everyone enjoy his days at BJC to the fullest: these were the reasons for having social functions.

Our first get-together was a mixer with music by Sal Denron's orchestra. The cool, crisp days of October put everyone at JC in the mood for the annual hay-ride held in Grand Marais Park. Our Homecoming Dance, held at Thanksgiving, provided a festive time for the students and a chance for reunion of the old grads as well.

When in Rome, do as the Romans do!

Just a few weeks later our Christmas dance was held, and Santa made his appearance with a gift for each girl. February brought Dan Cupid and a Valentine Dance at JC. The mood was changed a few weeks later when Prof. Herman had everyone's feet flying at a barn dance.

The social function which always reigns supreme is, of course, the prom which was held in June. The JC prom was the grand finale to a year filled with many memorable social affairs—each one better than the last.

Sal Denron played it cool at the Valentine Dance.

The Social Committee planned our night life.

Under the direction of Mr. James Pleasant, the Social Committee worked hard to make JC's various social activities a success. During the Sunday afternoon meetings, sub-committees were formed and chairmen were appointed to take charge of refreshments, programs, greeters, chaperones, decorations and publicity. Before each dance, Mr. Pleasant and a few members of the committee drove to a St. Louis supply house and chose suitable decorations. The Social Committee had long hours, hard work, and no pay except the reward of knowing they had made the Junior College activities more successful.

It takes two to tango.

Somebody had to do the hard work.

The cast rehearsed six weeks for the JC Play.

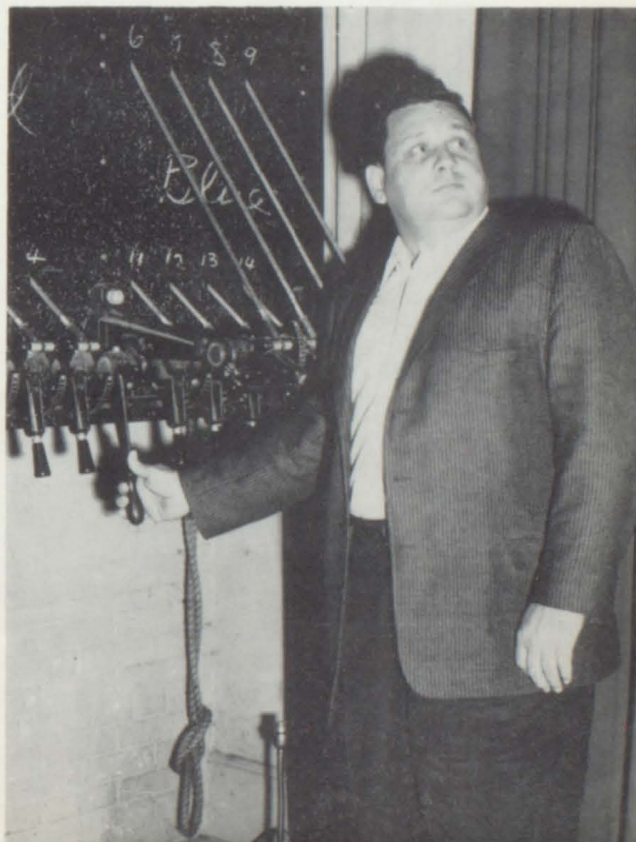

A prominent activity of our college year was the JC play, "Nude With Violin," a light comedy in three acts. This witty play by Noel Coward presented the conflicts between friends and relatives anxious about the contents of the will of Paul Sorodin, a brilliant painter. Sebastien, valet and companion of the dead painter, led the action of the play by revealing a startling letter. Interesting characters — a Russian princess, an ex-show girl, and an Immersionalist — sparked the action of this play.

This spicy play attracted a large and enthusiastic crowd which filled the auditorium on Friday, April 7.

An outstanding job of directing was accredited to Mrs. Merle Guthrie and Mr. James Pleasant. Through the efforts of the cast, stage crew, publicity crew, props committee, make-up committee and prompters, "Nude with Violin" was an excellent production.

Mr. James Pleasant, the technical director, checked the lights at dress rehearsal.

Rich Clark, Roger Buecher, Suzie Richards, and Nancy Rosenthal reviewed their lines between acts.

The selections of the choir brought a Christmas spirit to the school and its students.

Assemblies were provided for our pleasure.

The Junior College assembly, which added interest and variety to the student life of the school, was one of the ways through which the students and faculty could communicate with each other.

All students became acquainted with the various organizations of the college at our first get together in September. A representative from each organization gave a brief outline of his organization's purpose and invited any interested student to join.

In November the Student Council sponsored an assembly to introduce the homecoming queen candidates. At that time the students voted on their choice for queen. The results of the balloting were disclosed at the Homecoming Dance.

The choir, under the direction of Miss Hope Baer, presented the annual Christmas and Easter programs, which were the outstanding assemblies of the year.

At the beginning of the basketball season in November, the cheerleaders sponsored a pep rally at which time Coach Carter introduced the basketball team.

All in all the assemblies greatly enriched our daily program during the past year.

Sharron Race assisted Bob Forhertz as he provided organ music for the Christmas assembly.

We added harmony to our busy schedule.

The blending of melodic voices of the music groups under the direction of Miss Hope Baer filled the corridors of the cafeteria building every day. With their accompanists, Jackie Neathery and Sharron Race, they arduously rehearsed for their many engagements.

The Women's Sextette, Carolyn Smith, Linda Yager, Karen Cook, Ann O'Leary, JoAnn Loeffler, and Carol Gaffko, made a stunning appearance in their green weskits and green plaid skirts.

Snappy black and gold outfits identified the Men's Quartette made up of Mike Meyer, Rich Clark, Dale Marshall and David Tell.

We elected our leaders carefully.

The college council members, elected by the student body, served as the important link between the students and the administration. Early last fall, the council budgeted the students' activity fees and distributed the money to campus organizations. The coronation of the homecoming queen, the Tally-Ho publication and the blood donor program highlighted the council's activities.

The 1960-61 Council officers were Jean Jackson, vice-president; Richard Clark, president, and seated, Judy Weidemann, secretary-treasurer.

Bob Miller casts his ballot while JoAnn Schaefer supervises.

Mrs. Oelrich, Jerry Turley, Linda Ploudre and Judy Weidemann discussed many cover ideas before they decided on one.

The photography staff for the 1961 Dutchman included Rich Waigand, Duane Koller, Head Photographer, and David Rank.

The Dutchman Staff published the yearbook.

Now that the yearbook has come off the press, the 1961 Dutchman Staff is able to sit back and enjoy their summer. This past year we have met on Monday afternoons to work on our assignments. While our editor, Jan Siebert, worried over our deadlines, our business manager, Gary Buettner, kept us in the black. A pleasant surprise was in store for the staff when our adviser changed her name to Mrs. Harvey Oelrich. Already, the book has brought back many memories of our past year at BJC and in years to come it will recall many more for us.

Others eligible to pledge were: Jerry Baum, Johanna Bechtoldt, Sylvia Blandon, Mary Blanquart, Allen Bollmeier, Jr., Arlene Braquie, Judith Dressel, Jimmy Fey, Don Fries, Janice Hoffman, Phyllis Peters, Erma Ridenour, Mary Sowels, and Roberta Martin.

Mr. Harold Limper was the sponsor of the national honorary fraternity which met once a month. To be a member of this group a student had to maintain a 3.3 average. This year the organization published a student directory and sold it for 50 cents a copy. The names, addresses, and phone numbers of the Junior College students, faculty members, staff work-

We prepared for the teaching profession.

The Hal O. Hall Chapter of the Illinois Student Education Association, an affiliate of the National Education Association for teachers, was organized this year to encourage students to enter the teaching profession and to develop leadership qualities in students contemplating teaching as a career. Any student registered in the Education curriculum was eligible for membership. The club members were able to observe classroom teaching methods in Belleville Township High School and Union School. Miss LaChance of St. Mary's School was one of the outstanding speakers secured by the program committee to lecture to the group about teaching problems in the modern classroom.

Pat Norman and Sandy Carter served punch to Sandy Monaghan and Babs Carraway at the Freshmen Tea on September 23.

Mr. Frank Scott (seated) sponsored the Engineers Club whose officers were (standing) Ted Tiemeyer, president; Ken Wilson, secretary; and Eugene Maurer, treasurer.

The picture display in the cafeteria attracted the attention of two engineering students.

Sports and engineering clubs interested the men.

Striving to further the interest in the field of engineering is the primary objective of the Engineers Club. Students taking engineering courses may automatically join the club. The club's banquet in the spring was their main activity. At this time they were entertained by an outstanding speaker in the engineering field.

Sportsminded Junior College students who had earned a varsity letter in athletic competition were represented by the Lettermen's Club under the direction of Mr. Jerome Rybicki.

Members of the club participated in selling programs at basketball games and organizing a faculty basketball game.

Members and sponsor of the Lettermen's Club were: (seated) Bob Toenjes, Mr. Rybicki, sponsor, Louis Adams. (Standing) Gary Tegtmeier, Earl Layton, Russ Jowett.

The Nurses Club officers (back row) Ruth Melton, president, and Phyllis Reynolds, treasurer, discussed problems with Mrs. Gregory, School of Nursing Secretary, and Leann Krupp, vice-president.

The Nurses Club had an active, successful year.

Miss Pat Kaiser, BJC's Student Nurse of the Year.

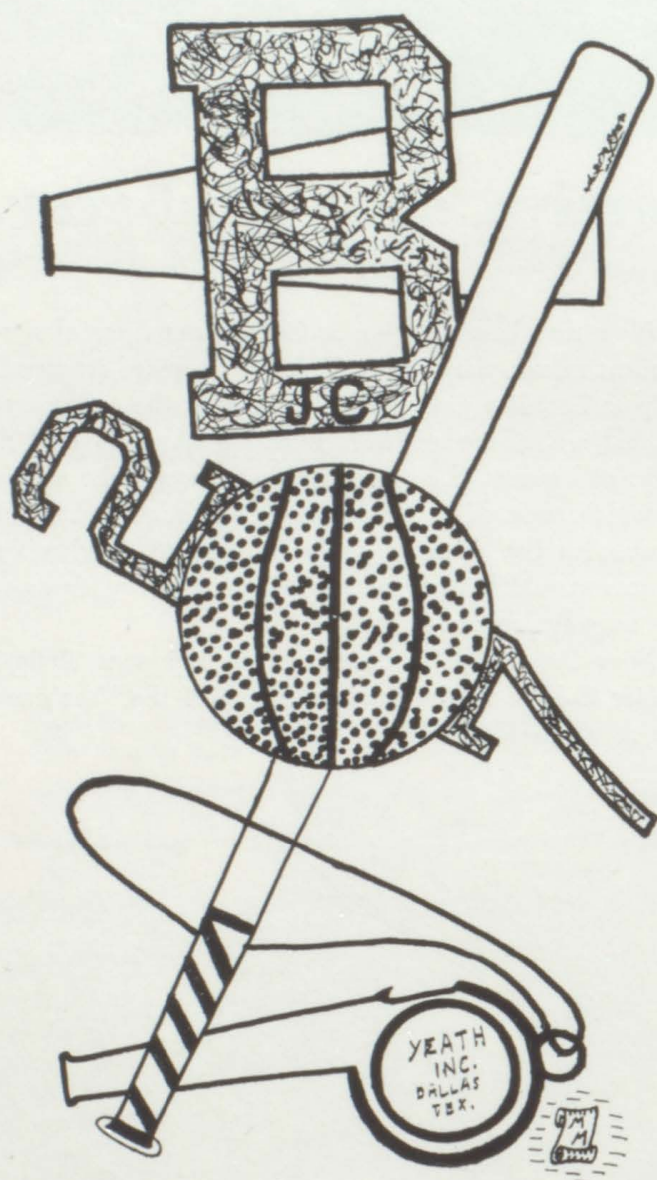

Now that Belleville Junior College has three classes of student nurses, the Nurses Club has increased its membership to fifty-five girls. Early in the year the officers were elected and the committees were appointed to find new ways and means of arousing interest. Among the activities in which our student nurses engaged were their Christmas party, fish fry, open house for the parents, and a series of teas at which they recruited high school students into the nursing program.

Miss Pat Kaiser was selected to represent Belleville Junior College in the Student Nurse of the Year contest which was held last fall.

At the Christmas party, the nursing students gathered around the tree to exchange their gifts.

Athletics

Although the main purpose of every school is to improve and increase each student's mental capacity, physical improvement cannot be ignored. Basketball, baseball, and tennis provided the unity, spirit, and pride that every school must have if it is to continue in a unified manner. Of course, we can't all be star athletes. The five-foot, 115-pound student had a very slim chance of ever becoming the star center on the basketball squad, but he helped his team and his school by attending sports events and rooting for the team. There was a place in BJC's sports for every student, whether we were playing on the team, cheerleading, or just good old-fashioned yelling, when the team racked up another point.

Our Dutchman ball jugglers and ball fumblers

The Belleville players lined up on each side of the basket to wait for the free throw.

About the first of November, hopeful prospects for the BJC basketball team began practice sessions under the direction of Coach Emery Carter. After many workouts the squad was cut to only the maximum number of players. Those candidates who showed the best ability and the greatest desire to play basketball were issued uniforms. The starting lineup for the Dutchmen was: Louis Adams and Ken Wells — guards; Bob Toenjes and Don Keel — forwards; and Bill Tate or Gary Tegtmeier — center.

In spite of the lack of experience in working together, this year's team had an interesting and exciting season starting with two wins against St. Henry's Seminary and the Hilltoppers. Our first defeat of the season came from conference foe, Mt. Vernon, with their 75-73 victory.

On December 12, the Belleville squad and cheerleaders traveled to Canton where they were defeated 61-42. This loss did not bother the Dutchmen, because two days later they traveled to Springfield and won this conference game, 85-76. The Dutchmen attack was led by Ken Wells with 24 points. Bob Toenjes added 16; Don Keel, 14; and Gary Tegtmeier, 13.

Mike Wittlich, Jim Snyder, Ralph Rowden, and Don Keel relaxed on the bench during a time-out.

Another defeat came to the Dutchmen on December 20 against Centralia. Even with Bob Toenjes' 23 points, the Dutchmen were unable to pull out ahead of the Blue Devils. On December 22, the Dutchmen played against former teammates and defeated the alumni 76-55.

The highlight of the season came when the BJC cagers handed the powerful Lincoln club its first defeat by downing them 74-72 in the final two seconds of the game by a 20-foot jump shot by Louis Adams. Don Keel took scoring honors that night with 26 points.

Following the Lincoln victory, the Cartermen hit a 6-game losing streak against the tough Washington carried us through another exciting season.

The Belleville cagers were seen in action on their home floor during ten games this season.

BJC fans cheered the Dutchmen on to victory at the first game of the season on November 20 against St. Henry's College.

They fought, scored, and usually won.

Three days later, however, the Dutchmen met Springfield and defeated them, 95-85. This victory was followed by three defeats. The Dutchmen ended their season by beating Flat River, 81 to 69.

High scoring honors were captured by Bob Toenjes with 311 points. Runner-up to Toenjes was Don Keel with 233.

Selected to guard positions on the Illinois Junior College All-Star basketball squad were Bob Toenjes and Louis Adams of the BJC Dutchmen. Don Keel, Bill Tate, and Kenny Wells received honorable mention.

The starting line-up, Bob Toenjes, Bill Tate, Louis Adams, Bob Hood, and Don Keel, received last-minute instructions from Coach Carter before starting to play.

Cheerleaders boosted our school spirit at games.

Each Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock seven of our Junior College girls had an important appointment to keep in the Girls' Gym. They were our BJC cheerleaders — an integral part of the school's athletic program — who are chosen by a committee of teachers. Each candidate for a position on the squad had to perform a cheer for the judges.

Miss Alberta Hamilton, the cheerleaders' sponsor, gave the girls some new ideas for routines and helped them to perfect their various jumps and formations. The girls participated in all of the home games and tried to attend as many of the out-of-town games as possible.

Rather than elect a permanent leader of the group, each girl took her turn at being captain. This system gave each of them an equal opportunity to assume the responsibility of leadership. By their boundless energy, our cheerleaders contributed largely to the enthusiasm felt by the players and the spectators alike. We were proud to have within our school such an outstanding group as the Belleview Junior College cheerleaders.

Diane Cotter illustrated a formation to Karen Jung and Elaine Schneider.

BJC's prospective baseball and tennis heroes

Even though this Dutchman went to press at the very start of the baseball and tennis season, we were filled with hope and confidence in the ability of our teams. The players in both sports were seasoned veterans of high school and college competition.

With the cheers and rigorous practice of the basketball season still fresh in our memories, we embarked on a new field of adventure which we hoped would prove to be as much fun and as successful as our previous one.

Our boys had a difficult time practicing during the first two weeks of scheduled practice because it rained almost every day. But their spirit and enthusiasm couldn't be defeated or dampened.

Bob Toenjes and Bob Spilka showed up in excellent shape for baseball practice.

Academics

Our academic accomplishments were the most important part of this college year. At the beginning of the year each of us was faced with the challenge of new and enlightening courses. We were expected to master certain fundamentals. In our rhetoric classes we learned to transcribe notecards into manuscript form for our research papers. As history students we studied the fascinating details which make history more than just a list of dates and events. In our science classes we performed experiments which made us wonder about how life is created. Much of our math study time was spent in getting equations to balance. As art and music students we acquired a greater appreciation of our cultural heritage. Through our affiliation with hospitals we, as nurses, were humbled when we saw the extent of human suffering. Our knowledge has been extended this year to make this a rewarding year academically.

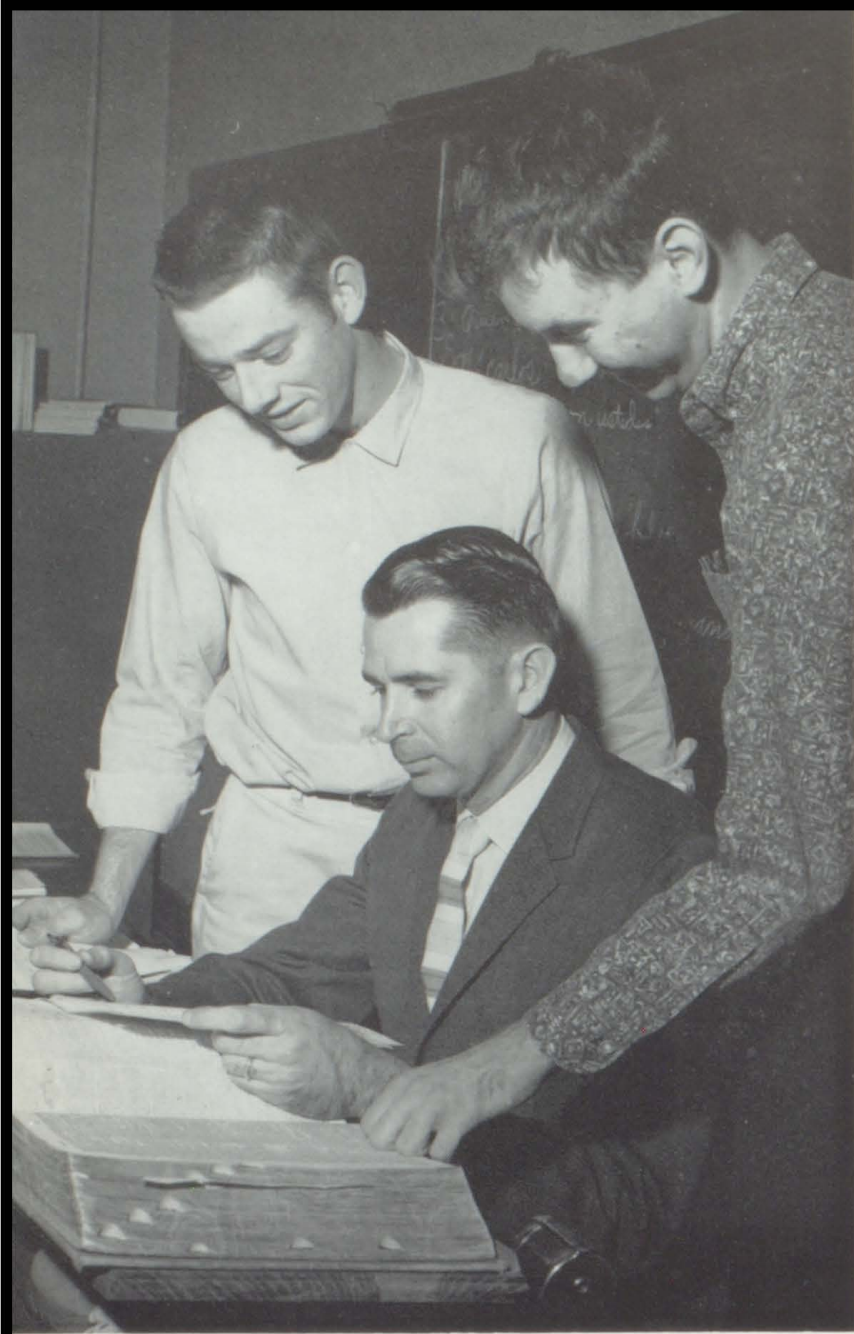

English supplied the basis for other studies;

Our past year at Belleville Junior College has been a very pleasing addition to our educational years. This period has been enjoyable because of many things. We enjoyed the social activities in which we participated and the people we met. Probably the most important phase of Junior Collège was the courses we managed to struggle our way through. Each department added to our knowledge of the world about us.

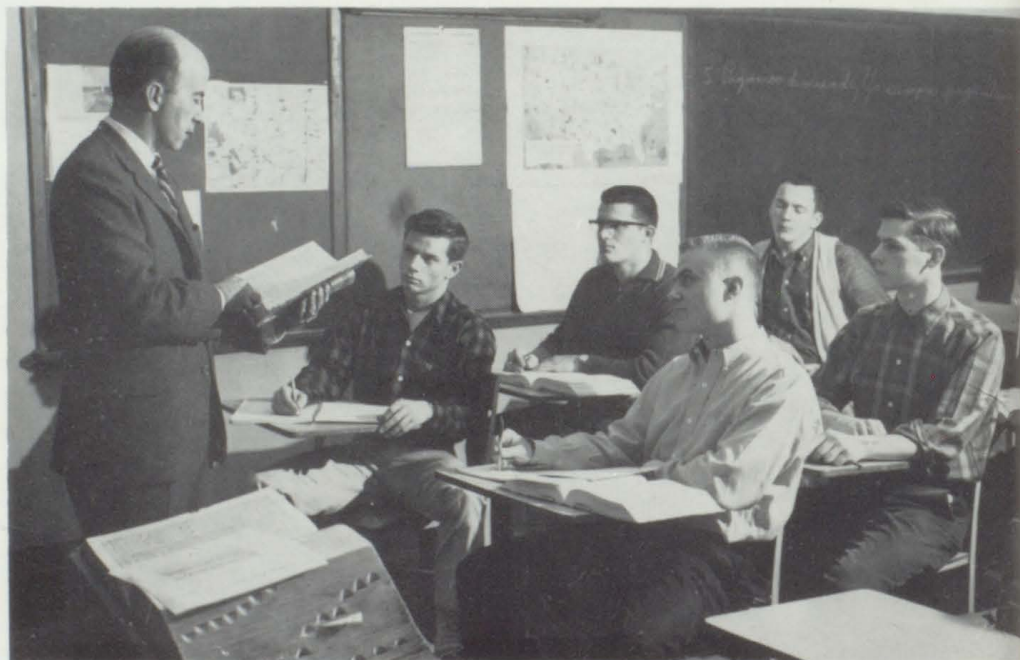

Forming an important part of each student's education, the English Department, headed by Mr. William Saunders, supplied students with the knowledge of rhetoric, literature, composition, and speech. This department gave JC students the basic information needed for all forms of future endeavor.

Headed by Mr. D. C. Edwards, the Science Department was of prime importance. Although chemistry unknowns and various plant structures caused many a worry and wrinkled brow, students somehow managed to struggle through. With a strong eye on the future, we strived to reach our goals in the fields of chemistry, physics, biology, and zoology.

Mr. Dale Van Blair (center) explained his correction marks on the themes of Cordell LaBrier (right) and Larry Wild.

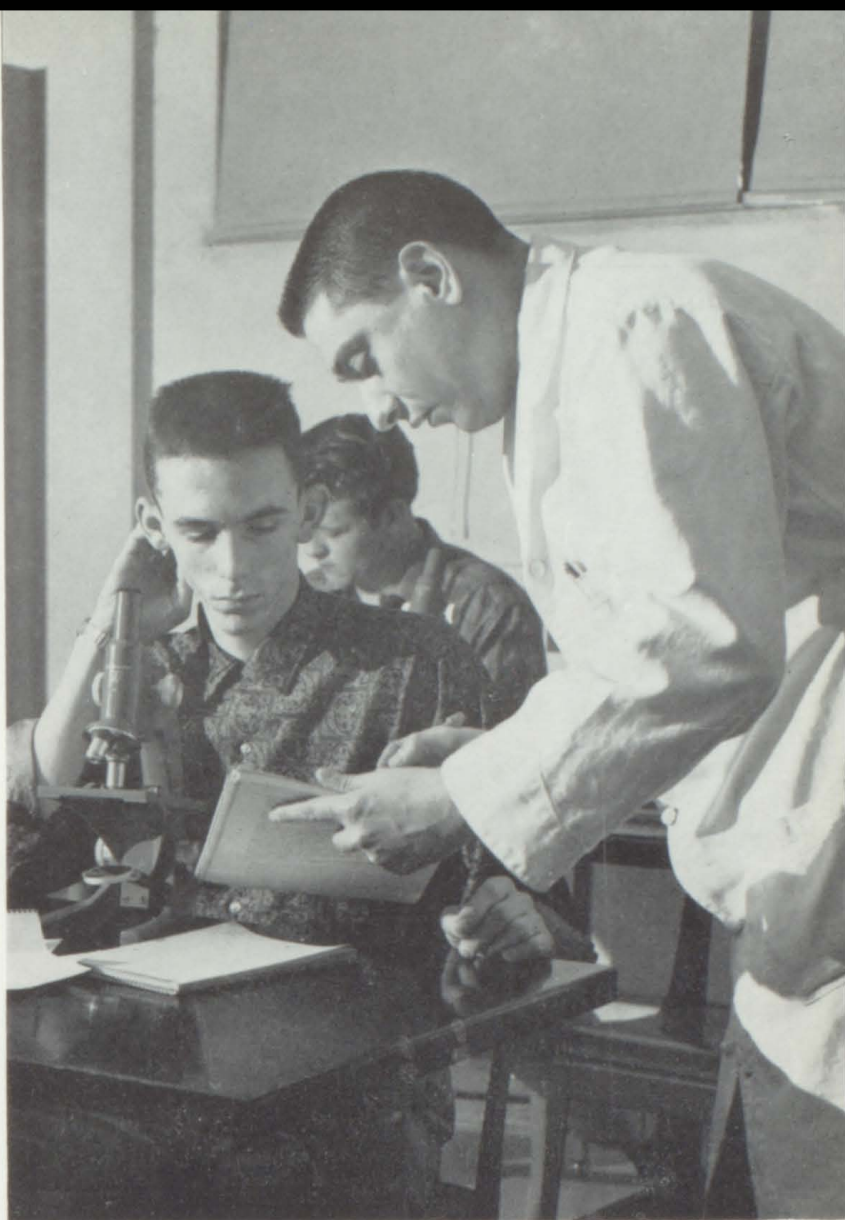

The English Literature class listened attentively to Mr. William Saunders as he read "The Prelude" by Wordsworth.

science provided many challenges.

The Language Department, headed by Miss Marguarite Skaar, proved to be one of the most interesting but difficult for many college students. Young men and women worked towards developing a good understanding of French, Spanish, and German. Not only did we learn a foreign language, but we also learned a great deal about other lands and customs through these courses.

Fine Arts added joy and interest as well as knowledge to many of our lives. The Music Department offered various music courses besides providing a choir and various ensembles. These groups performed at assemblies, in the Music Festival, and toured the local high schools. Under the supervision of Miss Marjorie Murray, art students were offered a wide variety of interesting courses, ranging from fundamentals of art to oil painting.

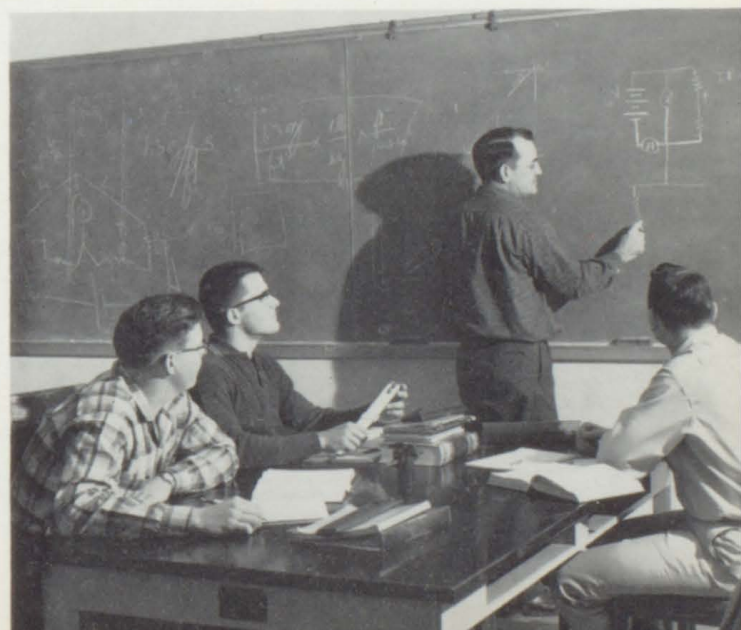

Mr. Robert Sforza pointed out the filamentous colony of an oscillator to Tom Robards.

Gary Tegtmeier, Bob Hearan, and Gayland Monken run their preliminaries in quantitative analysis.

Voltage drop was demonstrated by Mr. Pruitt in his Physics 256 class.

A German poster advertising music in Germany was displayed by Dean Richey and Jerry Turley. Miss Netta Niess, the instructor, looked on.

Social Studies, composed of psychology, geography, history, sociology, and government and headed by Mr. Alvin Nebelsick, supplied JC students with numerous interesting subjects that helped to enrich their knowledge of people and places.

The Math Department, headed by Mr. Kenneth L. Pyatt, was of prime importance to many JC students. Composed of various courses in algebra, geometry, trigonometry, calculus, slide rule, and basic mathematics, this department provided the tools we needed to proceed in many fields.

The Engineering and Drawing departments, supervised by Mr. Frank Scott, offered many courses to future engineers and architects. An especially large number of students enrolled and participated in this department this past year.

Miss Skarr demonstrated French triangular phonics as Rick Nold, Dorothy McEvilly, and Mary Cassing listened intently.

The Business Department, with Mr. Howard Belcher as department head, proved very effective through courses such as business math, finance, shorthand, communications, typing, accounting, and personnel management.

The Nursing Department, under the direction of Miss Clara May Miller, was one of the most specialized departments. Through careful observation and instruction, young women learned proper care for the ill and helpless by actually working in hospitals and gaining experience. This department asked for a great deal of study and determination, but it provided the future nurse with pride and satisfaction.

Languages provided cultural knowledge.

The Physical Education Department, headed by Miss Alberta Hamilton and Mr. Clarence Armstrong, gave JC students the physical exercise needed to keep their bodies and minds in the best possible condition. A wide variety of activities, from wrestling for the boys to modern dancing for the girls, was offered. The girls also invaded the Panorama bowling lanes and gamely strived to learn to score correctly.

Francis L. Richardson, director of the Evening Division, presided over a very important portion of Belleville Junior College. The Evening Division provided educational opportunities for adults who were not able to attend regular day classes. This department offered a large number of courses in many fields.

Fine Arts spurred our imaginations.

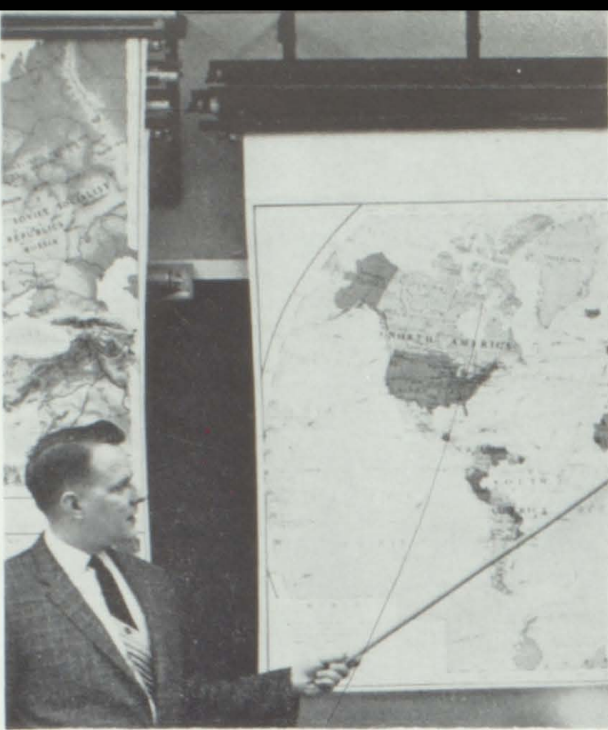

Jackie Dean, Connie Kosic, Joan Williams, and Bob Timmons constructed clever paper articles in art class.

Industriously creating wire art objects were Sharon Race, Lynn Strothmann, and Doug Eschra.

JoAnn Bloomer placed a record on the phonograph for Miss Baer while Jim Daumueller watched in music appreciation class.

Mr. Limper pointed out the location of an African city to the students in his geography class.

Louis Adams, Danna Winklemann, Clyde MacDonald, and Carolyn Guettermann examined different kinds of rocks in economic geography class.

Social study courses developed our thinking.

JC offered a variety of study programs. Students had the opportunity of either obtaining their freshman and sophomore years at JC and then transferring to a four-year college or enrolling in a two-year terminal curriculum. Single courses were also offered for those who only wished to improve some facet of their education.

In December, an examining committee from the North Central Accrediting Association inspected our college for possible acceptance by this organization. These gentlemen carefully observed and inspected every phase of JC. Each department was thoroughly studied and discussed. Students, teachers, and supervisors were questioned and asked their opinions—both favorable and unfavorable—of the college. At the present time, JC is anxiously awaiting their decision.

Tom Ratay, Jim Fisher, and Betty Fix hold a panel discussion in Mr. Richardson's fourth hour psychology class.

Tracey Williams rewinds the tape recording of shorthand dictation for those working on 90 w.p.m., while others in the class get additional speed building from records.

Business courses gave us specialized training.

Mrs. Betty Oelrich explains to Pat Press how to set the margins on the new Underwood typewriters.

Miss Ruth Miller demonstrates the procedure of inserting tape in the adding machine to Tom Rutz while Karen Saul and Cathy Merod look on.

Nursing led to careers.

During the past year, Belleville Junior College grew in many ways. As the actual number of students increased, the courses were broadened and enriched accordingly. JC's prestige also rose with more citizens taking notice of the college and voicing their approval.

Each student, teacher, and department worked together to help improve the college in every possible way. Students worked hard to succeed in their curricula through study and close observance. Teachers strived to help the students meet their goals more easily. Above all, each department labored to fill everyone's needs through careful planning, organization, and direction. It was through this close co-operation that JC succeeded in its programs and continued to improve. This co-operation helped make Belleville Junior College what it is today — a wonderful place to learn.

Jeanie Ferker and Sandy Marshall dissected a cat in anatomy class.

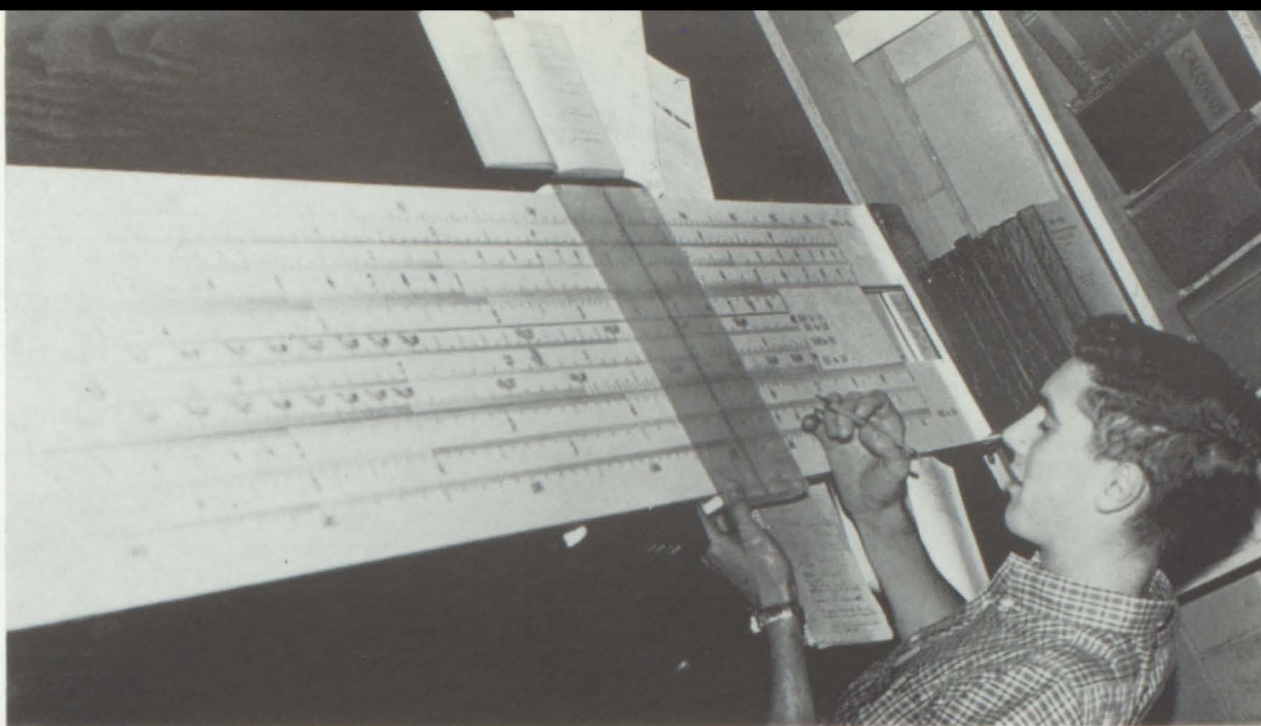

Visitors watched as Dianna Draper demonstrated the use of the buzzer for the convenience of the patients.

Pat Kaiser and two student nurses from the Alton Memorial and St. Joseph's Hospital examined the inter-com in the JC School of Nursing.

Children gazed questionably as Mrs. Phyllis Peters introduced them to Mr. Skeleton.

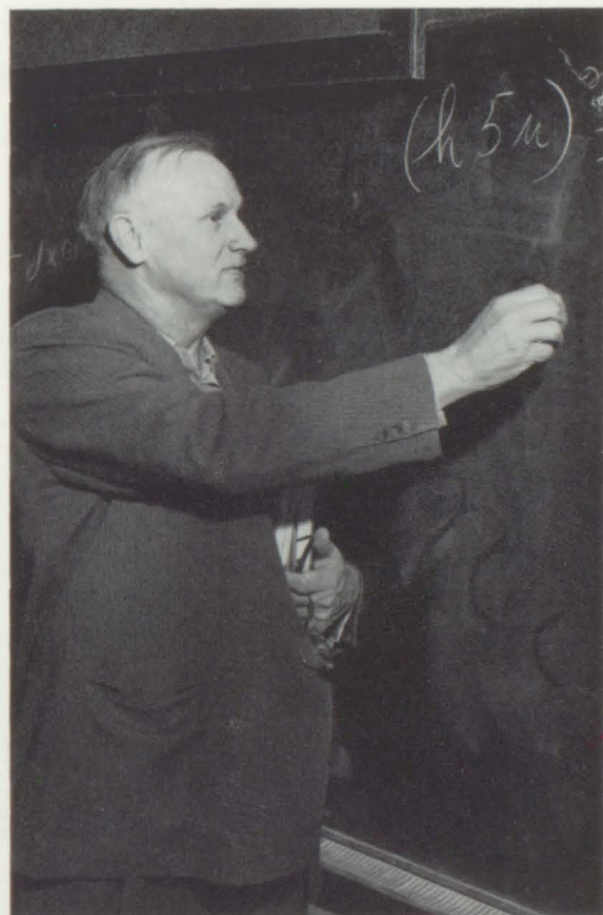

Don Freed laboriously figured out a problem in calculus with the use of a slide rule.

Math problems challenged our abilities.

Three of Miss Snyder's analytical geometry students confer with each other on solving a problem.

Mr. Mike Zupsich explained many shortcuts for solving equations used in his calculus class.

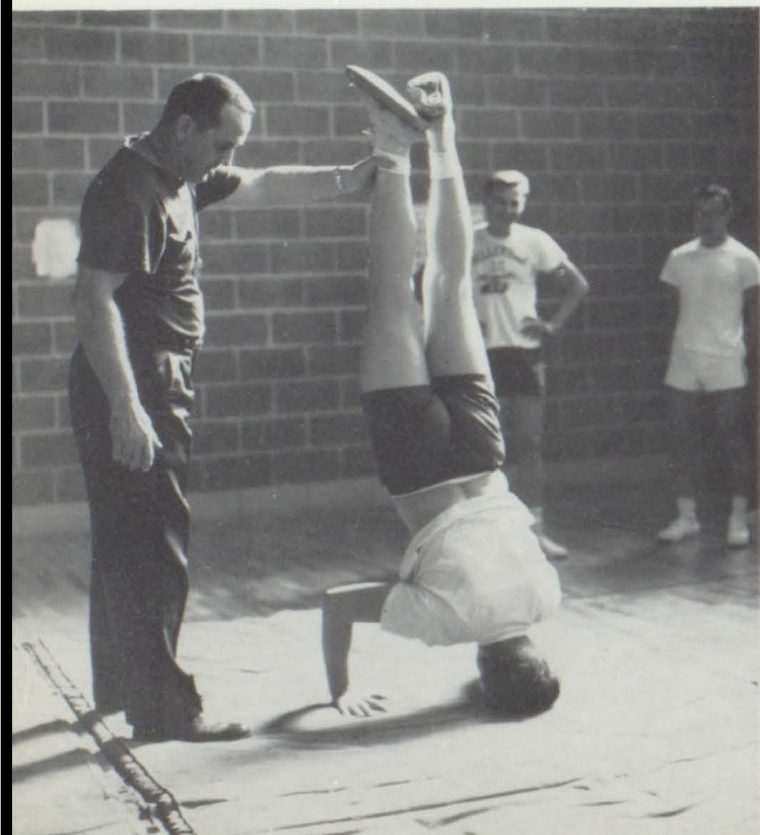

Miss Pat Spurrier demonstrated how to pass a basketball by throwing it to Mary Koch, as other girls heeded the instructions.

PE provided a welcome break from our studies.

While teaching the fundamentals of tumbling, Mr. Emory Carter lent a helping hand to one of his students.

JoAnn Schaeffer jumped with joy as the last pin toppled over for a strike.

The wives of many men stationed at Scott Air Force Base acquired knowledge of the English language by attending Mr. Margerum's night class, English for the foreign born.

Jim Rostrom gave an informative speech to Miss Ream's 4th hour class.

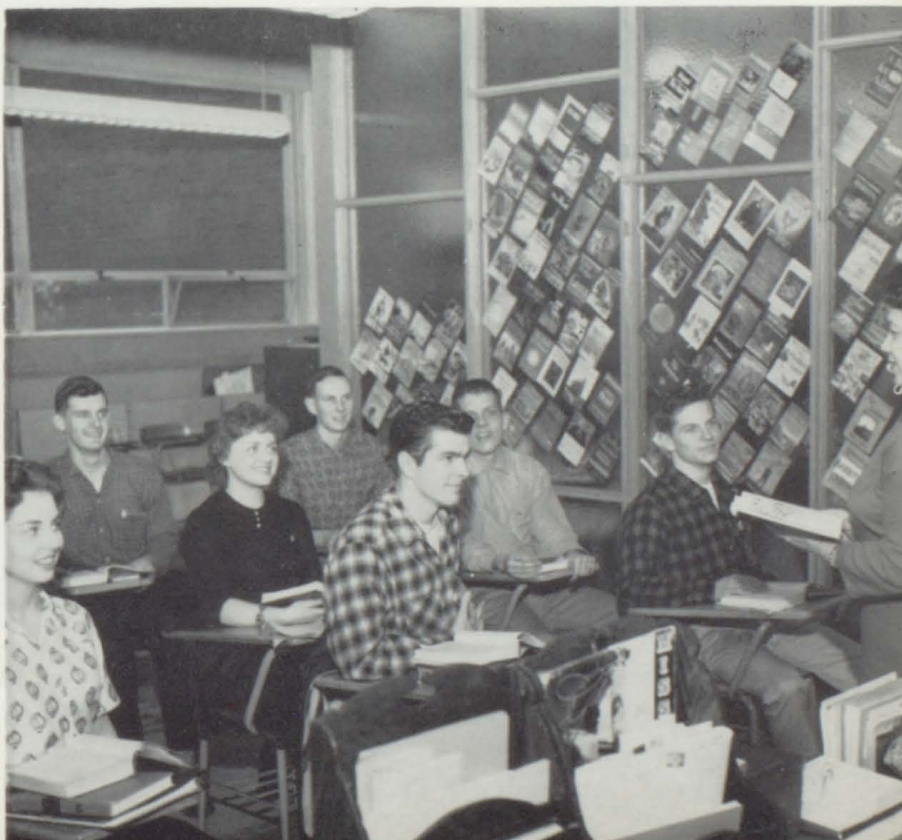

All departments stressed academic importance.

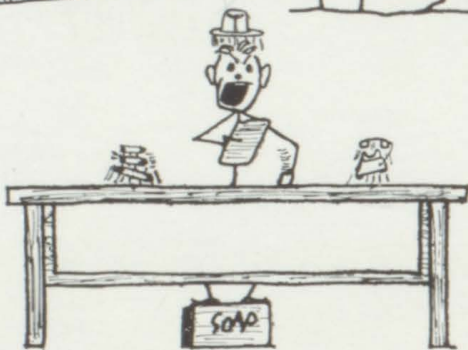

Physics students checked the supply room for materials needed during the evening division lab. period.

Mrs. Guthrie explained the fundamentals of analyzing prose to her oral interpretation class.

All of Us

The capable advice given by the administration started us students in the right direction at the beginning of this school year. As the year progressed, our questions concerning our courses were willingly answered by the members of the faculty. Between the hours of ten and one we were able to consume nourishing meals thanks to our hard-working cafeteria staff. At other times, the students kept the snack bar employees busy. The janitors spent many long hours keeping the campus neat and clean. We students were also kept busy with homework and extra-curricular activities. Yes, this year was a successful one in that it brought times for work and times for play to "All of Us."

Dean Kenneth Edwards had a busy schedule with his many conferences and meetings.

The office staff included Mr. Denver Logan, registrar; Mr. Vincent Margerum, assistant dean; and Mrs. Grace Lowery, secretary.

The administration worked diligently all year.

The success of this wonderful year, 1961, was made possible through the efforts of our fine administration. All of us realized how important this group of people was to the smooth operation of our school.

The members of the Board of Education were: (seated) Roger D. Jones, Miss Ruth Finke, secretary; Norman Stonewater, Mrs. Frances Braswell; (standing) Wilfred Holle, Dr. Marvin G. Miller, Herbert E. Baum, Leslie A. Driver, and Carl W. Feickert, president.

Dr. Don Matthews, superintendent, was always ready to serve the JC administration from his office in the main building.

and helped us to contribute our own ideas.

Along with work there must be a time for relaxation as evidenced by these members of the faculty and their wives at the Annual Christmas Dance.

Mr. Proctor and Miss Kriege made class preparations in the English Department office.

The cafeteria staff offered us balanced meals.

Members of the cafeteria staff were: (seated) Emma Kirsch, Ruth Rix, Louise Mueller, Orville Harper, manager; Margaret Rohn, Betty Koesterer, Ella Mann, Blanche Tezlaff. (Standing)

Lester Slade, Nellie Ulrich, Caroline Noll, Nancy Schubert, June Scheifer, David Tell, Martha Griebel, Leona Noser, Rose Kricenski, Anna Gaubatz, Henrietta Kuhn, and Dorothy Thompson.

Mrs. Ella Mann prepared pie dough for the dozens of pies which are made daily. . . . Mrs. Margaret Wittauer waited behind her counter of food for the rush during 5th hour lunch.

The cafeteria staff, headed by Mr. Orville Harper, played an important role in the well being of the Junior College students and faculty. Mr. Harper and his staff planned and prepared each day an unbelievable amount of appetizing food. At Thanksgiving time we were presented with a delicious turkey dinner which included all the trimmings. We realized that many hours of hard work and concentration had gone into this vital, but never-ending operation, and were glad that we had such a fine group of cafeteria workers.

For our books, pencils, art materials, gym shirts and all other school supplies, we were ably assisted by Mrs. Melba Graf who managed the bookstore most efficiently. Without her help, it would have been impossible for us to secure the many necessary items we needed.

Equally important to the effective operation of JC were the custodians. They waged a constant battle against dirt, germs, and grime from early morning until late at night.

The students and faculty both benefitted from the work of these lay employees, and were all grateful for the excellent ways in which they served our school.

Mrs. Melba Graf, who operated the bookstore, was in charge of ordering and selling all books and supplies.

Mrs. Graf greeted her bookstore customers with a friendly smile.

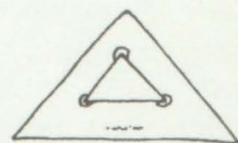

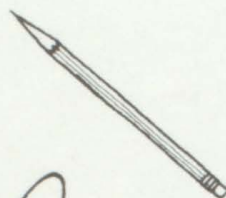

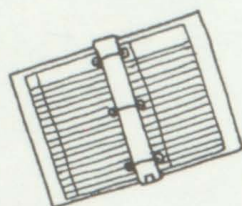

The lay personnel made our days easier.

The school custodians were: Row 1 (seated) Peter Lisch, Emil Gantner, Frieda Guckes, Leroy Wright, and Adolph Dill. Row 2 (standing) Ted Funderburk, chief engineer; Edward Butts, Merville Austin, Thomas Erwin, Albert Rapp, Hubert Briesacher, Albert Neumann, Alfred Terry, Ferdinand Seiler, Adam McBride, Phillip Christian, Norman Bruss, and Arthur Vetter. Absent when picture was taken: Mathilda Reinneck, Ben Cook, Emil Boucher, Charles Mitchell, Jacob McCarty and Walter Magin.

We ended another year

We have reached the end of another active year. Some of our activities will always be remembered, while others will be forgotten. The dances we enjoyed, the games we won (and lost,) the studies we conquered — these are our memories. During the past year, the freshmen have become college men and women. For the sophomores, it has been a stepping stone from the old, toward new horizons. The fun, the frolic, and the friendships of this past school term have made this year most memorable for all of us who were a part of it.

June graduates, Eldon Winker and Judy Calhoun, proudly displayed their caps and gowns.
